Military Mark Time on Social Parade

By Marie McNair

IT WAS the military who made social headlines yesterday. At the Greek Embassy Ambassador and Mme. Melas entertained at cocktails in honor of Lt. Gen. Constantine Dovas, wiry, bright-eyed and graying Chief of the Hellenic National Defense General Staff.

Or, in other words, the Admiral Radford of Greece.

Across the street on Sheridan circle there was a party at the Korean Embassy for Yong Woo Kim, Minister of National Defense of Korea, who looks far too young to be a person of such importance.

And two-star and three-star officers from the Army, Navy, and Air Force were making a path between the two houses.

General Dovas, who arrived on Saturday, will make a coast-to-coast tour of military installations and will return in time for a meeting of the Chiefs of the Joint Chiefs of NATO on April 6. After that he will visit Canada before returning home.

Early on the scene at the Greek Embassy were the Belgian Ambassador, Baron Robert Silvercrux, the Luxembourg Ambassador, Hugues LeGallais, the Italian Ambassador and Signora Brosio and Lt. Gen. Charles P. Cabell, USAF, Deputy Director, Central Intelligence.

SEN. and Mrs. Alexander Wiley came and Chief of Protocol, Wiley Buchanan and Mrs. Buchanan were first at the Greek Embassy and, like Lt. Gen. and Mrs. Leigh Wade and Maj. and Mrs. Robert Schow, later met at the Korean Embassy.

The Yugoslav Ambassador and Mme. Mates, the Mexican Ambassador, Manuel Tello and the First Secretary of the Norwegian Embassy, Elovius Mangor with Mme. Mangor joined the group in the dining room, where there were tasty Greek meatballs, dolmas—or rolled, stuffed grape leaves; and honey-rich baklava among the native dishes on the buffet.
